Dear Dr. Williams,

It is with great pleasure and admiration that we inform you that in recognition of your outstanding contributions to the field of cardiology, your passion for equitable access to care, and your unwavering commitment to advancing cardiovascular health, the American College of Cardiology in partnership with Johnson & Johnson (J&J) will be naming a room at the Heart House in your honor.

As part of this special recognition, your name will be placed at the entrance of a conference room on the first floor at the Heart House and will remain there for three years. This honor is part of our ACC Campaign for the Future campaign and “Change the Field” initiative, which include goals of diversifying the field of cardiology, building new leaders, and creating innovative programs to address disparities in cardiovascular care. These mission-driven initiatives are directly aligned with the ACC and J&J’s vision of transforming cardiovascular care and improving heart health for all.

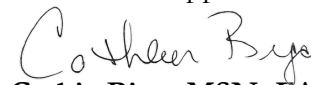

The decision to honor you in this way reflects deep admiration for your exceptional work and leadership in advancing care and innovation within cardiology. We know you share our passion and vision for a world where science, knowledge, and innovation optimize cardiovascular care and outcomes. That is why it is so fitting to have a conference room at the Heart House bear your name.

We believe this dedication will not only celebrate your remarkable achievements but also inspire future generations of healthcare professionals. We hope you will accept this recognition, and we look forward to placing a plaque with your name at the entrance of the conference room at the Heart House to honor your dedication.

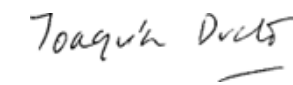

We are available to answer any questions about this and look forward to hearing from you.

Thank you for your extraordinary contributions to our field and for being a guiding force in cardiovascular medicine.
